which will appear every Sunday morning.

The HERALD is connected with the telephone system of Los Angeles city and country. Orders for insertion in the paper may be sent through this medium to our office.

Mr. B. N. RICE is the Santa Ana agent of the HERALD.

Is forwarding its election returns to Washington the State of New Hampshire assured the hereditary thrif of New England. The returns were sent by mail instead of by messenger.

The incoming Republican Mayor and City Council might fittingly show their approbation of Democratic magnanimity in the past by re-electing Chief Cudly, who has proved himself to be a highly capable and satisfactory official. They have the opportunity. What will they do with it?

The future of the San-Juan Islands has been a very frequent matter of speculation, and it has been the fad to concede that they must ultimately become Chinese. The government of those Islands, however, is taking energetic steps to prevent the threatened disaster, and a vigorous immigration from Japan is looked for in the kingdom of Kalakaua. It is a historic fact that the weak race always gives way to the stronger, and it is very evident that in all the enduring elements of nationality the Japanese exceed the people of any other country in Asia.

It is looked upon as significant that the Soldiers' and Sailors' Veteran Association, of Marion county, Indiana, should tender its congratulations to Vice-President-elect Hendricks upon the result of the recent election for President and Vice-President of the United States. It is significant—so significant of the fact that the army and navy of the United States are not, and never have been, either Republican or Democratic. Let us hope that one of the many good effects resulting from a Democratic administration of public affairs will be the complete recoognition of this fact.

The fact that less than thirty of the medical gentlemen of this city should be willing each to assume the risk involved in attending properly to the duties connected with the position of Health Officer of Los Angeles, should, on the face of it, be extremely gratifying to our citizens; but in this as in all things, there is such a thing as what the French term an embarras des richesses, or, to put it in the vernacular, a redundancy of raw material. It is to be hoped that one or two of these gentlemen may be induced to withdraw from the contest, so that the choice may not be so very embarrassing.

It is to be true that the owners of land in the Highland View and the Highland Park Tracts intend to oppose in any way the construction of the Los Angeles & San Gabriel Valley Railway—an assertion for which the Hendreds does not vouch—they will find themselves to be dealt with to the full extent of the law.

The question of Miss Mackay's engagement to the Prince de la Crubé Casses, of ancient Roman blood, and whose fortune may need the bolting up of an additional American fortune, won since the young lady came into being, is about as interesting to the American public in general as the reported marriage of the President to a young lady—charming, of course—to of Buffalo. Why should such stupid romances be telegraphed to sensible American citizens? If a worthless Roman noble and a wealthy American girl choose to exchange rank for bread and butter, what should the rest of us care—especially when what we might care couldn't make a bit of difference? And neither the Constitution of the United States, nor any amendment thereto, has ever provided that the President of this Republic shall marry, unless he chooses to do so—in which case the master concerns only one of our fifty-five million citizens. However, so far as the princely alliance is concerned, it may be mentioned, in the strictest confidence, he it understood, that the prince in question is the descendant in the first or second generation of a nameless individual who, from being what the Romans call robis Roma, that is to say rubish, became a leading banker in that city. At the same time it does not matter, so far as the stability of the Republic is concerned, who our young countrywoman marries or who may be wed by the President of the United States. In both cases, always taking it for granted that the parties immediately concerned like it, the HERALD begs leave to give them, and each of them, its benediction.

From recent decisions of the tribunals of Arizona it would appear that the future of polygamy, apparently an integral portion of the Mormon belief, has been doomed in that Territory.
It would, therefore, be supposed that in Utah, which is also a Territory of the United States in which identical laws govern, courts and juries of the United States can very readily arrive at a similar conclusion. Necessarily, under the Constitution of the United States, it cannot be a matter of religious belief whether polygamy is tolerated or prohibited in our Territories. But it is very evident that the very great majority of the citizens of this country are opposed to the practices of polygamy in any part of the Republic, and, although the tribunal whose immediate duty has been to expound the opinion of that majority have been derelict in their plain duty, it is a matter for public congratula-tion that they are now awakening to a proper sense of their obligations to the Republic.

A SAN FRANCISCO journal remarks that "The Republican party promoted the greatest war of modern times with less expense to the people in blood, than any similar confusion ever entailed." This statement of the Evening Times takes the trouble to disprove by means of the same plain arguments which have been so often used to disprove it. The Republican party happened to be in power during the period when a civil war, for which that party was not the least to blame, was fought to an end. That had happened near a score of years ago, and it is about time that the ridiculous claim of the Republican party, to which reference has been made, come to an end, also.
The Republican party alone did not prosecute that civil war. Had it not been for the Democrats of the North who then constituted, as they still constitute, two-thirds of the Democratic party, the Republican party would have been very badly off in the contest. Long-sighted assertions like that quoted above cannot effect the truth of historic facts.

We are to judge from the advice of the Presidents—that all excise taxes shall be abolished except those on distilled spirits—it will soon be seen that this is the only fiscal reform which the Republican party intends to advocate, and that the tariff reform will not be looked upon with favor by the Republicans, notwithstanding the plainly expressed wish of the people at the late election. If this course be persisted in by the opposition the result will be that, at the next election of Congressmen and of Legislators of the different States who elect Senators, the will of the people will be expressed even more strongly than it was last month. It's very likely, therefore, that when the time shall come for Mr. Cleveland in his turn to give place to a successor, the Senate as well as the House of Representatives will be Democratic and that the Democratic lease of power will be extended indefinitely—as, indeed, for the good of the people it should be.

The tariff must be reformed, and the waning strength of Republicanism will oppose it feebly and more feebly still as the years of the coming Presidential term roll on.

Next and third among the Republican Senators and Representatives there is one who recognizes the fact that the abject abeyance of American shipping interests is due to the short-sighted policy of the Republican party. One of these gentlemen is Senator Cameron of Pennsylvania, who impudently attempts to steal Democratic thunder by a proposition that there shall be a rebate on tariff duties on foreign goods in ships built and owned in the United States, and a premium allowed on American grown products and articles of American manufacture exported in American vessels. This is a very weak invention of the enemy and will be undoubtedly with the reception it deserves. On the contrary, the resolution of Senator Hill, to the effect that, in view of the actual and increasing depression in the value of the wages of labor and the products of farms, workshops and mines, the recommendation of the President and that of the Secretary of the Treasury to the effect that the coinage of silver money be suspended and the issue of silver certificates prohibited, should be disregarded, is one that must be approved by all thoughtful citizens. Mr. Hill is right in his demand that, in view of the constantly increasing population and exchanges of the country, the coining of silver shall not be reduced. On the other hand, the proposition of Mr.
Cameron is simply an absurd attempt at whipping the devil around the stump.

A vigorous examination touching the evils which result from the employment of partisan United States Marshals is about to be made by the House of Representatives. Let us hope that the investigation will be made vigorously, for the evil resulting from the appointments of these useless and arbitrary officials has become notorious throughout the Republic. It is notorious that, before the introduction of this unconstitutional machinery in the conducting of elections for federal offices, the elections were conducted much more honestly and fairly. The Office of ROGERS, BYRAM & CO.
